When the Rev. Robert Peebles extended me the invitation to speak at the Lawton Family Reunion on the approximately 1,300 manuscripts in the Lawton Family Papers in the South Caroliniana Library, I accepted the task dutifully, but with the reluctance that my modesty naturally compels. I knew generally the scope and size of this collection which had come to our Library through the good service of Thomas O. Lawton, Jr., (Note 1) of Allendale, and Jess Ives, of Jacksonville, Florida. Had I been fully aware at the time of the invitation that our Library already had another 1,300 or more Lawton Papers, and could have foreseen the perils of a task left to the eleventh hour for completion, my sense of duty would have been abandoned and modesty would have prevailed.

Upon a casual perusal of these two groups of papers, the researcher might first assume that the collection had been mislabelled, and he might conclude that they were instead a miscellaneous collection of papers of about a dozen or so other unrelated families of old Beaufort District. Upon a closer look he would find that there is, however, a Lawton, who as a central character, moves throughout most of the time-span of the collection, a man whose presence is more often only felt by his endorsement on the back of documents that came into his hands as executor and guardian rather than by letters to and from him. This gentleman was Alexander James Lawton (Note 2)--hereinafter referred to as Colonel--a planter, lawyer, legislator and surveyor of Robertville, St. Peter's Parish, Beaufort District, born in 1790, who at his death in 1876, relinquished his custody of the papers to his descendants.

To put Col. Lawton in his proper genealogical setting, one must turn to "Cousin Annie's" book--a book appropriately titled Our Family Circle (Note 3)--for I must confess to feeling a little dizzy now and then--through no fault, of course, of the author, Annie Elizabeth Miller--as I turned to it as an indispensable guide to a study of the collection. In it the researcher will find the families of Robert, Fickling, Maner, Jaudon, Polhill, Audebert, Tison, Stafford, Barksdale and Lawton, to cite but a few of the approximately sixty families whose names appear in our Lawton Family Papers, most of whom really do belong to a family circle (or circles) related by blood and marriage, some of them tracing their ancestry in common to three of Carolina's illustrious pioneers: Landgrave Thomas Smith (Note 4), the Huguenot minister, Pierre Robert (Note 5) and Bonum Sams (Note 6). The lines of these three gentlemen crossed with that of a family of Welsh Dissenters, Lawton by name, early in the history of our state.

Although I can claim one recent Lawton inlaw, I am still an outsider, and the genealogical connections between the various families featured in the Lawton Papers naturally staggered me. I have the greatest admiration for "Cousin Annie" for her boldness and success in delineating a family history which contains such unusual situations as three sisters of one family marrying three brothers of another (Note 7), and a progenitor (Note 8), a Baptist minister at that, who had at least nineteen children in two marriages.

An insider, Benjamin Spicer Stafford (Note 9), a Lawton relative, in his unpublished autobiography, recalled the hard times of Reconstruction which forced his family to move to the West, and wrote affectionately of his early life at Robertville: "Nearly everyone in the country was born and reared there.... So many people were called cousin and uncles and aunts who were no kin or who could only trace their connections generations back." Stafford added that the woods were full of Lawtons, reminiscent of an 1821 statement by another Robertville resident referring to the "old lady, Mrs. Lawton (undoubtedly Sarah Robert (Note 10), wife of Joseph Lawton (Note 11), formerly of Edisto Island), who is the mother of half a dozen heads of families here."

I was delighted to have the opportunity of studying in the Lawton Papers a splendid example of an early American social pattern characteristic of the gentry of other communities in low country Carolina. Slow increase in white population, restrictions of class, geography and travel sometimes forced the scions of these societies to select their helpmeets from among their relatives. Often the alternatives to this were either to leave home in search of a mate or to marry beneath ones social and economic station. On the other hand, family intermarriages might lead to concentration of considerable wealth, especially in land and slaves, typical examples of which can be found in the Lawton Papers. They could also produce genealogical mazes when sufficient family data were available, an example of which is before me. You will therefore forgive me if, in my all too superficial analysis of the Papers, I tend to lose my way or mention now and then a person who is not really one of your ancestors.

The Lawton Family Papers are indeed a significant addition to our Library's manuscript collection, which now comprises more than one million manuscript items. Important, of course, for the genealogical data they supply, but more so because the official and many of the non-official records of this region were the casualty of a War. Most of the Lawton Papers fall chiefly into the period between 1800 and 1860, the heyday of this corner of old Beaufort District in its development as a prosperous plantation community, and are similar to the kind you would expect to find among some of the county court records--bills, receipts, wills, inventories, bills of sale for slaves, deeds and plats, some tracing titles as far back as 1733, almost all of which came into Col. Lawton's hands and retained as his record as executor of the estates of deceased relatives. They were preserved, not with the view of the needs of today's historian or genealogist, but as legal proof of his just stewardship as administrator and guardian.

Col. Lawton is undoubtedly the central figure in this collection and Robertville, South Carolina, the center of his stage. Unlike the Colonel, whose personal papers are apparently gone forever, the existence of this little village on the edge of Black Swamp, its economic pulse and flux, is very much in evidence in the wealth of details to be found in his records of the estates of men and women who lived around him. One might even suppose that by feeding the data on each business transaction recorded in the Lawton collection into a modern electronic computer, we could get back a day by day, perhaps an hourly, record of what transpired in the Robertville community. To me, as Director of the South Caroliniana Library--and I hasten to add as a member of a family other than the Lawton connections--this picture of Robertville economy is the chief fascination and value of the collection. But I might also add: What else was Robertville but the Lawtons and their relations?

A casual examination of the abundant economic detail in the papers might lead one to agree with the Yankee school teacher, Charlotte Verstillle, who concluded shortly after her arrival in 1821, that Robertville people were "very worldly minded, and...appear to think more of the rise and fall of cotton than of the rise and progress of religion." Her brother, Tristram, in 1813, shortly after his arrival at Robertville from Connecticut to begin a clerkship in Mr. Brooks' store, had pronounced the town a good place for business, being situated at the junction of four public roads which were very much travelled. Was it worldly-mindedness, as well as hard work and ambition, which in a few years after his arrival put Tristram in business for himself?

The economic growth of this community during the remaining decades of the ante-bellum period can be detected in a comparison of the following descriptions: Charlotte Verstillle wrote her sister in 1821:

"This splendid village contains but six houses, a Church, an Academy, two stores and a black-smith's shop. But there are a number of houses situated at unequal distance around it, and inhabited by wealthy planters. These buildings can boast neither of a cellar nor an upper story--all the rooms being on the surface of the ground. Glass windows are quite a rare luxury, light being usually admitted by throwing open a wooden door swung on hinges where the windows should be. When found necessary to guard against the cold, the light is sure to be excluded. It is surprising how many comforts these people of wealth will voluntarily deny themselves. I have been in no house which appears as well as Tristram's. It has two sitting and six bed rooms, one of which will, as soon as he finds time to attend to it, be furnished with glass windows....Our situation too is pleasantest, being at the union of the Savannah, Augusta and Charleston roads, with a green in front of which stand the Church and Academy.... Our table is plentifully supplied with variety...the grand staple eatable here is bacon--bacon and collards (a sort of cabbage) you will find on every table at every season...."

In 1879, an old-time resident of Robertville reported for the Hampton Guardian that just before the Civil War:

"...the people around this place, with very few exceptions, were in easy circumstances, many owning plantations, with from fifty to two hundred slaves, and several as many as five hundred. Some planters numbered as many as twenty thousand acres of land in their domain. Their sons and daughters were educated at the best Southern and Northern colleges and seminaries. Our village then contained one small neat Episcopal church and a baptist church...said by those who knew, to have been the best proportioned and finest country church in the State."

Like Tristram Verstill, the Lawtons, too, were hard working, ambitious and had a part in the economic growth of this community. Some of the younger members of the family now and then found it necessary to serve as overseers on relatives plantations or to move westward and to Florida to seek their fortunes, but most of those who stayed at home seem to have prospered. Joseph Lawton, of the second American generation and the first in Robertville, had begun as early as 1774 the acquisition of the several tracts which became Mulberry Grove Plantation, the Lawton's ancestral home in St. Peter's Parish. Part of his wealth may have been acquired as a result of his 1791 contract for hiring eight of the field slaves of his mother, Mrs. Mary Sams Grimbball Lawton Fickling. Appraisal of his estate after his death in 1815 amounted to nearly $10,000, exclusive of his lands and money. By 1827, the estate of his eldest son, William Henry, who died that year, was appraised at nearly $90,000, exclusive of land and money. Of this amount, more than $42,000 was assigned to the value of his slaves and $10,000 to bank stock. I do not believe it necessary to call your attention to the difference between the value of the dollar then and now.

Increase in possession of worldly goods in the third generation, in Joseph's younger son, the Colonel, can be partially traced in the Lawton Papers relating to his acquisition of land, and hiring, buying and inheriting slaves. In 1815, in his twenty-fifth year, the Colonel sold twenty-six bales of cotton valued at $2,036, for himself and his father's estate. In 1819, he formed a partnership with his brother, William Henry, for the operation of a store at Robertville, under the firm name of Alexander J. Lawton & Co. Later in 1833, a few years after William's death, he joined his cousin, J. B. Jaudon, in partnership for the operation of a short-lived mercantile firm of J. B. Jaudon & Co. in Savannah. The Colonel could not leave his Robertville interests; his chief duty for the firm, other than the initial investment, was promotion of business by procuring "additional and new customers," for which he was to receive one fourth of the profits. This partnership dissolved upon Jaudon's death in 1834. In 1850, the Colonel was one of a committee sent to study the cotton mills at Graniteville "preparatory to establishing one in" the Robertville area, a fact which strongly suggests he had considerable capital for investment. In 1852, his business interests expanded with the addition of a steam engine "with gearing for a grist mill and constructed to run a saw mill," the purchase and installation of which cost him $1,600. The Lawton collection contains an undated manuscript map of a portion of Robertville probably drawn by the Colonel in connection with a plan for an insurance business. The map shows the junction of the Charleston-Augusta road with the Robertville-Savannah road, the location of the Colonel's home, his store and gin house, the homes of his nephew, Joseph Maner Lawton, and Benjamin Jaudon, and Peter Jaudon's sadler's shop. The Colonel's appointment as Deputy Surveyor had undoubtedly placed him in a position for acquiring good lands for himself, and a number of plats in the collection drawn by him are not only exceptionally neat, but show a draftsmanship which approaches the artistic.

The hundreds of bills, receipts and accounts for household goods and furnishings, for plantation supplies, equipment and Negro goods, for transportation and tolls, and accounts for sales of rice and cotton, show Robertville business oriented in the direction of Savannah, Georgia, and the importance of Purrysburg as a Savannah River depot. Among the dozens of Charleston, Robertville and Savannah mercantile establishments represented by these business papers, the firms of Lawton & Behre, Polhill & Lawton, Lawton & Willingham, Taylor, Lawton & Co., Lawton & Norton, Jaudon & Huguenin, reveal the extensive business connections of the family. A favorite among the invoices is from the firm of C. Jaudon & Son, dated 1859, with "Robertville, S. C." printed in bold type, and in small type the boast, "We can and will sell at Retail as low as can be bought in Savannah."

Numerous letters from prominent South Carolina lawyers at Coosawhatchie, such as Franklin H. Elmore, James L. Pettigru, Henry Bailey and R. J. Davant (Note 12), submitted advice to the Colonel on estate settlements, and show the importance of that town as the seat of government for Beaufort District.

There are a surprising number of Beaufort District doctors represented by bills and accounts in the Lawton Papers--Doctors Jeremiah Fickling, A. R. Norton (Note 13), T. E. Lawton, Thomas Currell, Thomas H. Harris, Sidney Smith, Samuel Perry, F. Y. Porcher, Charles Atkins--some of these and several others appear to have been within or personal physicians to the Lawton Family circle. Among the doctor relatives of Col. Lawton were his nephews, Doctors James Stoney Lawton and Benjamin Lawton, nephew-in-law Dr. Theodore Dehon Mathews; Dr. N. F. Kirkland who married his grand-niece, Jane Maner Lawton; and his son-in-law, Joseph Thomas Robert, who forsook his medical training to become a minister and educator. An account of the sale of the estate of Dr. T. E. Lawton in 1845 shows that his medical library, drugs and supplies were purchased by Drs. Norton, Nichols and Duncan.

Of the Robertville physicians, perhaps the most interesting was Samuel Perry, who, with the Verstilles, came from Connecticut. According to Grace Fox Perry in her book, The Moving Finger of Jasper, he is buried in the Bostick cemetery near Robertville, with "a slight but careful apology...upon the tomb...for this sufferance." Nevertheless, he too may be said to have joined the Lawton Family circle when his widow married the Colonel's brother, a Baptist minister, Winborn Asa. Dr. Perry, judging from his subscription to help build a Methodist church on Black Swamp, was himself a Methodist. When Dr. Perry died about 1821 he had a house and lot in Robertville, and his estate was settled by the Colonel. In connection with this, Col. Lawton received a letter in 1826 from a Savannah school master, W. W. Walsh (?), who had taught at least one of the Lawton daughters. Walsh denied liability for Dr. Perry's eight dollar charge for attending another student during an outbreak of measles at his school. The bill, Walsh felt, should be paid by the student's prosperous guardian, Dayid M. Fitts, who "kept a house of public entertainment in Coosawhatchie." This Mr. Fitts may have been Dr. David Montague Lafitte, whose papers, incidentally, have recently come to our Library.

Among the other interesting medical items in the Lawton collection are three receipts signed with an "X" by a mysterious Mary Wall for midwifery and attending sick Negroes. Was she a free Negro, midwife and nurse, or were her talents more extensive as I am led to believe and include secret voodoo cures?

Many of the bills and accounts for medical services were for attending members of the family during their last illnesses, but most of them were for treating their slaves. Typical examples of the latter are the two dollar fee of Dr. Sidney Smith, in 1831, against the estate of William Henry Lawton for "extirpating Fungus Tumor from head of Little Negro Silloh," and the two bills of Dr. Thomas Currell for nearly two hundred dollars, in 1836, against the Barksdale estate, for attending slaves on Scullcreek and Calabogia plantations. I am certain that no part of South Carolina gave slaves more attention, physical and spiritual, than the Robertville masters, who were motivated by a strong mixture of Christian charity, as well as economic self-interest.

I am also sure that Charlotte Verstelle's early opinion on the worldly mindedness of her Robertville neighbors was soon modified to give them some credit for attention to spiritual values in religion and education. She certainly knew from the beginning of her life there that she was in the center of a Baptist stronghold, for she reported in her 1821 letter on the scarcity of Presbyterians and Methodists, and, I suppose, the non-existence then of Episcopalians, as compared to the strength of the congregation of the Black Swamp Baptist Church, which numbered then thirty white and one hundred black members. She would soon witness a period of Baptist revival there, an early result of which may have been the construction of a new church building of uncommon beauty and appointment. The agreement, dated May 13, 1824, between the Building Committee which included the brothers Joseph J. and Col. Lawton and Tristram Verstelle, and the two contractors, containing the specifications for the new church, is in the Lawton collection. It is almost impossible to believe today that this splendid structure could have been built for about four thousand dollars, including, apparently, the costs of both labor and material.

In view of its subsequent burning by Sherman's army, one cannot help but note that the plans called for extensive use of "fat lightwood." One happy thought occurs to me in this connection and that is the copy of agreement in the Lawton Papers might have been lost also if the Colonel had not settled the estate of one of the contractors, the Robertville carpenter, Erastus Swift. The collection also contains another agreement with specifications, dated 1829, for the construction of a parsonage. With their new buildings, the Black Swamp congregation maintained a vigorous activity within the Savannah River Association throughout the rest of the ante-bellum period, with Col. Lawton, as one of its deacons, always in the forefront through contributions of his time and money.

Establishment of other congregations in the area through spiritual and financial encouragement is one result of the activity of the Black Swamp congregation. The Black Swamp congregation is also said to have produced fifty white and one hundred colored ministers, but I wonder if the Lawton Family shouldn't receive most or much of the credit. As with their doctors, the Lawtons produced, married and supported Baptist ministers. Among those in the family circle were the early Black Swamp pastor, Rev. Alexander H. Scott, who married Elizabeth Robert; Col. Lawton's brother, Winborn, minister at Hilton Head; the Colonel's nephew, Rev. Joseph A. Lawton, married his son to the daughter of Rev. Iveson Brookes, a great Baptist minister within the Savannah River Association. Another famous Baptist preacher, Dr. William Henry Brisbane (Note 14), an Abolitionist, but born in Beaufort District, married the Colonel's niece, Anna Lawton. I was unable to find a family connection with the young Rev. Robert B. Brooks of Robertville, whose estate the Colonel settled in 1824. (Note 15)

Col. Lawton's brother-in-law, James Jehu Robert, was pastor and deacon at the Black Swamp church for about fifty years. Last but not least was James Jehu's son, Joseph Thomas Robert, who married the Colonel's daughter, Adeline. According to his grand-daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sarah C. Robert, who lives today in Maryland, Joseph Thomas Robert attended Columbian College in the District of Columbia; graduated from Brown University with an A. B. in 1828 and an A. M. in 1831; attended Yale Medical School from 1828 to 1830 and graduated from the South Carolina Medical College in 1831. He then studied for the ministry at Furman Theological Seminary to return to serve the Black Swamp church in the 1830's. After several brief pastorates in Kentucky, Georgia and Ohio, he became a college professor, first at Burlington University in Iowa, later at Iowa State University, returning to Burlington as President in 1869. In the 1870's as though in continuation of the Black Swamp tradition, he worked with Georgia schools devoted to the training of colored ministers; in 1879 he became President of the Atlanta Baptist Seminary.

In an 1848 subscription for the salary of the Black Swamp minister, Col. Lawton with B. R. Bostick, James J. Robert, B. Jaudon and John L. Maner, are the five largest subscribers who provided more than half of the total. In her 1832 will, Martha Stoney Barksdale (Note 16), who subsequently married the Colonel's nephew, the Rev. Joseph A. Lawton, provided one thousand dollars for support of the ministry at the Hilton Head Baptist Church and six hundred dollars for the Beaufort Baptist Church for the purchase of a library for the pastor's use. Receipts of 1833 and 1835 are for her subscriptions to the Hilton Head and Pipe Creek congregations. In 1836, as the wife of Rev. Lawton, the former Mrs. Barksdale continued her support of the preacher at Hilton Head and paid her 1835 subscription to the Rev. Mr. Moody as Missionary to the Negroes on that island. An 1850 receipt to Col. Lawton, probably as deacon of Black Swamp, acknowledged a twenty-six dollar contribution to the Savannah River Association's "funds for Widows & Orphans of deceased Ministers of the gospel within its bounds"--an item which might prove that Black Swamp Baptists would support their ministers beyond the gates of death.

In reviewing the career of Rev. Joseph Thomas Robert, one is led to entertain a suspicion that he and his wife, Adeline Lawton, shared the abolitionist views of Rev. William Henry Brisbane. He did dispose of his slaves before taking up permanent residence in the North. In the Lawton Papers there is an 1840 bill of sale conveying his slave, Lavinia, and her three children, to his father-in-law, Col. Lawton. There is also a provision in the Colonel's will anticipating rejection by Adeline of her share of his slaves. In my opinion it should not surprise us to find in a community such as Robertville even a few members, especially ministers, whose consciences might force them to eschew slavery. The exemplary record of slave-master relations of the Robertville area and its outstanding work in the Christianization of the Negro through its Black Swamp Baptist Church, as revealed in the Lawton collection and in other sources, would in fact lead one to expect to find even more persons willing to harbor abolitionist sentiments.

In the slave conveyances in the Lawton Papers, there is evidence that great care was taken to prevent the breaking-up of families and that slaves of deceased masters may have been bought by relatives to prevent them from leaving the community. In her 1842 will, Catherine Lawton (Note 17), the Colonel's sister-in-law, devised a plan to prevent her "Negroes from being separated from each other" in an equal distribution among her heirs. In 1837, Rev. Joseph A. Lawton authorized his cousin, Elias Jaudon, overseer at his wife's Calabogia plantation, "to let the negroes go to town for their Xmas."

In the one letter in the collection from Adeline Lawton Robert, written from a distant state, one senses the affectionate regard for the race when she asks her father, the Colonel, to write her about his "crops, garden, fruit, the negroes, church, neighbors." The four words,--crops, negroes, church and neighbors--are almost an adequate summary of life in Robertville, and seem to point out the important place assigned to the slave in its society and economy. The work of the Black Swamp Baptist Church among the Negroes is illustrated by the spacious, comfortable three sided gallery for slave and free Negro communicants who far outnumbered the white. Benjamin S. Stafford, in his autobiography, has left us with a vivid personal recollection of participation by Col. Lawton's slave, the Black Swamp deacon, "Daddy Jack" in this congregation's affairs, of communion served by the Negro deacons to their Christian brothers and sisters in the gallery and of numerous baptisms of Negroes by white preachers in the waters of Black Swamp. The Verstelle Papers provide us with a reference to an excommunication of a member of the Black Swamp Baptist Church for illegal trading with Negroes. Both the law and the church were severe on the guilty since the trade encouraged the slaves to steal from their masters.

Evidence of this church's mission in training Negro preachers is found in a document by Col. Lawton, dated 1869, identifying "Daddy Jack" as the colored preacher Jack Taylor. This remarkable document and others connected with it also illustrate the Colonel's continuing affection for his former slaves during the trying years of Reconstruction, in an attempt--which entangled him for several years in governmental red tape--to secure a federal military pension for his former slave, Isabella Graham. There are few surprises in the Lawton collection greater than this. Despite the political implications of the time which might have provoked animosity in other men, I joined the Colonel in his sympathy for poor Isabella, the "Widow of Moses Graham, a deceased Coloured Soldier of the United States, who died in the said Service," but who was also formerly the property of the Colonel's neighbor at Robertville. "Daddy Jack" had married Moses and Isabella on the Colonel's plantation in 1854. Col. Lawton offered in labor contracts to his former slaves one-half of their crops rather than the prevailing one-third rate, a fact drawn from Stafford's autobiography which amplifies our meagre knowledge of this gentleman's fine character.

Other religious and charitable activities of the Robertville Baptists are revealed in the Lawton collection. From the fragmentary records of the Union Bible Society of Beaufort District, for the period 1853-1862, we learn that Col. Lawton, his nephew John Lawton, W. J. Stafford and B. J. Jaudon served as its officers at various times during this period, that three of its annual meetings were held at Lawtonville, Grahamville and Steep Bottom in 1856, 1858 and 1861. By 1861, the Society had distributed 729 Bibles and 955 Testaments since its founding in 1825. The Robertville firm of C. Jaudon & Son served as the depository for the remaining stock of books.

"I will thankfully enter into any thing that will promote the cause of Religion, Education, &c." Thus wrote Adeline Robert to her father, the Colonel, in 1858, a sentiment I am sure shared by many of the residents of the Robertville community. Adeline's husband was then combining college teaching with half-time preaching as a Baptist minister and her oldest son, Joe, Jr., was "working hard teaching in a Female Seminary in Kansas City." Another of her sons, destined to become the celebrated army engineer, General Henry Martyn Robert (Note 18), had just graduated from West Point and would soon embark on a teaching career in that institution. "Prosperity still seems to attend Henry" she wrote her father in 1858, the only reference, I believe, to General Robert in the entire Lawton collection. It is not difficult to entertain the idea that Genl. Robert's inspiration for his great work, his Rules of Order, a world best-seller, may have really originated in an early association with the Black Swamp Baptist Church rather than at a cantankerous Baptist Church meeting in Massachusetts.

In 1828 the Black Swamp church resolved to raise a one hundred dollar contribution to the prospective Columbian College in the District of Columbia, a school which Joseph Thomas Robert, the General's father, attended a few years later. Mrs. Sarah Lawton's twenty dollar subscription in 1839 must have been just one of many gifts to another Baptist college, the still new Furman Institute where both General Robert's father and James Tison received part of their education.

Perhaps the most interesting phase of educational activity in Robertville is found in meagre detail in the Lawton and Verstelle Papers, on the Robertville or Black Swamp Academy. As far as I could determine these are the only sources of information on this school and I will be grateful to you for pointing out others. According to the 1818 plat by Col. Lawton, the 20 x 40 foot school house was centered in a half acre lot near Robertville on the "Sister ferry" road adjacent to the Black Swamp Baptist Church. In 1820, the Academy lot, and probably the "buildings lately erected" were deeded by William Henry Lawton for five shillings to the school's "senior" trustees, Col. Lawton, his brother Joseph J., John and William S. Maner and John and James J. Robert.

Tristram Verstelle's letter of October 1819 to his sister, Charlotte, reported that a considerable number of young ladies had been taught at the school, enough apparently to lead the trustees to consider it desirable to divide the school into Male and Female Academies, independent of each other, a proposal which seems to have failed. Later, Charlotte, for her health's sake, came to live with Tristram and shortly thereafter began teaching at the Academy. Tristram's home was "within a Biscuits throw" of the school, and he may have boarded some of the students. In 1827, Charlotte reported that Samuel Howard, of Savannah, nephew of the Charleston writer and editor, Mrs. Caroline Gilman, had taken charge of the Academy with its six scholars. In 1828, Catherine Maner Lawton, widow of William Henry, the school's benefactor, paid Mr. Howard for tuition of her daughters. In 1835, the academy was probably being conducted by M. R. Soares who sent his bill for ten dollars to Mrs. Barksdale, the future Mrs. Joseph A. Lawton, for one term's tuition in Latin and three text books for her adopted daughter, Josephine Polhill (Note 19). Mrs. Barksdale's 1832 will appointed Col. Lawton as Josephine's guardian, and further provided that she "shall have a good education such as young women with her prospects should have"--a statement which may be taken as implied evidence of the excellence of the Black Swamp Academy. Here ends my knowledge of this little school; as scant as it is we are fortunate, for it is more than we know of many of South Carolina's ante-bellum academies.

There is disappointment in store for the historian who turns to the Lawton Collection for specific details on the politics of this Black Swamp area. There is nothing here on the legislative services of Col. Lawton and his nephew, Dr. Benjamin William Lawton of Allendale. One manuscript contains the Colonel's rough tally of votes in October 1851 at the polls in St. Peter's Parish, for election of a delegate to a Southern Congress during the secession movement which resulted from the threat to the South posed by the Compromise of 1850. Lawton was one of five candidates, which also included the ardent secessionist Robert Barnwell Rhett. Rhett, won by a wide majority, Col. Lawton coming in third. The Colonel of course carried Robertville and tied Rhett at Purrysburg which might serve as evidence of the close economic ties between the two towns. In a broader application, the collection, of course, is politically significant because of the light it sheds on the economy of the area which was the foundation of its politics. In 1850 Lawton apparently opposed the immediate secession policy of Rhett and the majority of Beaufort District, but he might well have joined his nephews, Benjamin Lawton and George Rhodes, years later in the signing of the Ordinance of Secession.

The Lawton Papers contain little or no data on the family's activities on the civilian and military fronts during the Civil War; one has to turn to other sources for this. It is especially disappointing to find so little in the collection on the family's Confederate general, Alexander R. Lawton. Georgia has a greater claim on him than South Carolina, but his papers are in a North Carolina depository. Another odd twist of fate is the fact that the other general in the family, Henry Martyn Robert, espoused the Union cause, although not a general at the time. Several documents in the collection relate to an organization originating in Robertville of the citizens of St. Peter's Parish for supplying the South Carolina soldiers in Virginia with blankets and clothing, through Dr. John Bachman of Charleston. Col. Lawton served as its Chairman and Samuel Solomons as its Secretary.

I do not wish to appear ungrateful to the donors of this collection to our Library when I speak of disappointments in my study of the Lawton Papers. I know you will appreciate my attitude when I say that the greatest disappointment of all was in the absence of the personal papers of Colonel Alexander James of Lawton. Like so many of our state's "unsung heroes," he seems to me to deserve a larger place in our history than his posterity, related or unrelated, have afforded him.

Since the collection contains fewer than a dozen personal letters, there is practically nothing on Robertville's fate as the first South Carolina town to be destroyed by Sherman. The Stafford autobiography is valued for the story of his family's flight to Allendale to refuge in Dr. Benjamin Lawton's home which Stafford called "the finest in the whole country," but which nevertheless went up in flames because its owner had signed the Ordinance of Secession. Nannie Bostick DeSaussure was a witness of the total destruction of Robertville: "There were thirty buildings destroyed....There was but one fence paling to indicate the site of our little village." Gone, of course, was the graceful building of Black Swamp Baptist Church.

Lawton strategy and foresight in this trying time is perhaps revealed in John Lawton's (Note 20) 1866 request to Mr. Hazel at Transpine plantation to send him his "Circular Saw, which my Uncle, Col. A. J. Lawton, had buried under his house to save it for me" during the recent invasion. I am sure that the saw was far more appreciated than any family silver which may have been saved for the difficult days ahead. I would join John Lawton in thanks to the Colonel for somehow managing to save the family papers too, and express gratitude to his descendants who did the same.

With the total defeat that came with Sherman, the story of Robertville fades into obscurity--and you will agree perhaps that this is a good cue for me to bring my discourse to an end.

I must say first, however, that a study of the Lawton Papers can give only a partial glimpse into the activities of Robertville's society, with what might seem to be a neglect of the contributions to the community by the Maners, Bosticks, Tisons and other families who lived there. I hope some day that some of their papers will be located and brought to the South Caroliniana Library for posterity to study.

I have enjoyed getting to know a little about some of your ancestors and I hope that we will get to know each other better through your frequent visits to the South Caroliniana Library to study the Lawton Family Papers.

Although Charlotte Verstelle's judgment of Robertville as "worldly minded" may have been correct for 1821, it may have been wrong for the years that followed, and even if she never joined the ranks of the Lawton Family Circle, I am sure she would join me now in quoting the closing lines of an 1895 letter in the Lawton Collection: "GOD BLESS YOU MUCH, AND MAKE YOU A WORTHY & PIOUS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE LAWTON & ROBERT FAMILIES OF ROBERTVILLE ON BLACK SWAMP ST. PETERS PARISH BEAUFORT DIST. SO. CA."

4 August 1989

Dear Robert,

I was delighted to receive your letter of some date with your kind words of praise for the little reception at St. James Santee. All passed along to Dee (without whom it could not have been done). She has consented to back me up and I have called Lucia to say I will do all I can to make the hospitality committee do a good job this year. It is not completely clear in my mind what the job is. Are we supposed to be doing something about the October officers meeting? I understand that next spring we must get the invitations printed, addressed and mailed in plenty of time to get responses for the General Assembly on 28 April. We will work with Jack Boineau on receipt of money and reservations to make sure he gets the money and we get the head count. It is very generous of you and Miss Cora to gift the wine and we will make sure there are carafes and glasses and discuss the idea of a cash bar with Mr. Hastie as well as settle the luncheon in due course. I'll also ask Lucia thousands of questions to make certain that we don't forget anything.

The Lawton Reunion was such a special treat this year. Wish you could have joined the group for church Sunday morning. Your trip to England seems unimaginable- I shall look forward to a more detailed account when next we meet. It is very dear of you to send along the copy of the Legend of the Bleeding Wolf. I shall see that the rest of the family gets copies.

I've just returned from my month in the mountains and am ready to turn around and go back. It is far too warm for normal civilized people. Though we have it easy compared to some dear friends who volunteered to relieve two missionaries in Lahore Pakistan for six months. Asia can be fun but I don't believe Lahore can be anything but horrid.

Thank you for your thoughts and prayers for the Clowns Bazaar. We are brooded over just now by many pretty peace doves with pink beaks and olive branches. These were made in a mission in San Salvador (Santa Maria Madre de los Pobres) and brought back to us by a group of teenagers who had gone from a Baltimore Presbyterian Church to San Salvador for two weeks to help them any way they could.

All these doves makes me think of Gerard Manly Hopkins and "Ah - bright wings!"

Blessings

Peace

and Love

to you both
Dee

The Lawtons gather . . . in Lawton

The American visitors congregate outside the Bleeding Wolf, Scholar Green.

Visitors from all over the United States of America converged on Church Lawton recently, for all of them claimed connection in some way with the Lawton family, and believed their "roots" were in the village.

A tour company in America arranged for the 34 people to spend a "Heritage Week-end" in the village, visiting the area and meeting the residents.

On the Saturday, there was a tour of All Saints' Church, followed by a tour of Lawton Hall by Mr. John Lawton, the squire's son. In the evening, the visitors were the hosts for a buffet at Lawton Memorial Hall, and entertained over 100 people.

The following morning, the American visitors returned to the church for a Heritage Service conducted by the Rev. R. Sutton. The lesson was read by Mr. John Lawton, from Florida — one of eight Lawtons from across the water who share the name of their English counterparts.

Their week-end was completed by a tour of the Cheshire countryside, conducted by Mr. Sutton.

LAWTON AND ALLIED FAMILIES ASSOCIATION REUNION

June 17-18, 1988

HOLIDAY INN

Hardeeville, S. C.

The Lawton & Allied Families Association annual reunion was held in Hardeeville, S.C. at the Holiday Inn June 17-18, 1988. Approximately forty members of the Allied Families met for our traditional get-together on Friday evening. Cora Peeples faithfully provided her display of newspaper clippings about activities of our family during the past year. Please remember to send Cora information about births, marriages, activities, honors and deaths. Newspaper clippings help Cora build an interesting display which she does for us each year and which is appreciated by all. A collection of paintings by a very talented member of the family, Wesley Maxwell Lawton, were on display.

The business meeting began at 10:00 A.M., Saturday. A group of approximately forty-five members and guests were welcomed by Dr. Robert James Lawton, President. The Invocation was given by Wesley Maxwell Lawton. Mrs. Marion R. Lawton (Peggy) gave the Treasurer's report for her son, Russell Lawton, reporting a balance of $3022.63 in the cemetery fund. Work has been done at the Smyrna Church Cemetery and Robertville Cemetery during the past year. Jack Boineau has found a man to clean the cemetery on Edisto Island where Col. William Lawton is buried. There is extensive work needed to restore this cemetery, brick work and all.

The report of the Historian, Cora Peeples, will be attached to the Minutes. This includes births, marriages and deaths. This report will be as complete as the information which you send to Cora.

Dr. Gerald M. Church (Gerry) reported for the Bibliography Committee. He requested that any members with suggestions for information which can be added to the Bibliography contact Lucille Dickinson, Catherine Moore, Robert Peeples, Thomas Lawton or Gerry Church.

Tommy Lawton reported that work is continuing on Incorporating a Lawton Family Association.

A proposal for a marker for Col. William Lawton and his wives was discussed. Tommy Lawton will work with Jack Boineau to determine what needs to be done at the Edisto Cemetery.

Dr. Peeples reported that $1049.00 has been collected toward a monument to Pierre Robert to be located at the church at St. James, Santee.

Copies of the new printing of "Our Family Circle" are now available from Cora Peeples ($25.00 plus $2.50 Postage). Five dollars goes toward the family cemetery fund. We all would like to thank Cora for making this new printing possible.

Next, each family group introduced their individual members and gave their relationship to the Lawton family tree.

Dr. Gerald M. Church, Program Chairman, presented our speaker for the reunion - our own Reverend Dr. Robert E. H. Peeples. Robert gave a very informative talk on "The History of Early Robertville". At the conclusion of Robert's talk we adjourned for lunch.

The meeting reconvened after a delicious (and I do mean delicious) buffet lunch and Marissa Jane Hunt (Granddaughter of Jane and Gerry Church) recited a poem which she had composed about the reunion.

THE LAWTON REUNION

"The Reunion is here!
The Reunion is here!"
The voice is still ringing in my ear

Welcome Lawtons' the old sign says,
The Lawton Reunion should last 3 days,
At the Holiday Inn the speech will be given,
For all the Lawton's descendents that are still livin!

From England the Sir William came,
To bring the Lawton family name,
And here and now we celebrate,
The Lawton people, so, so great

And for 3 days we reunite,
For sometimes days and sometimes, night,
To remember where the Lawtons came,
And celebrate the Lawton Name!

By Merissa Jane Hunt, June 1988, 10 years old.

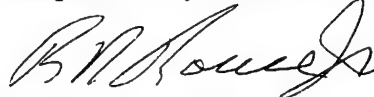

A discussion of the 1989 meeting site concluded with a proposal to meet in Charleston, S.C. Russell Lawton will investigate possible locations to hold the reunion.

Blaine Mikesell gave a very informative presentation of a proposed tour of England for the Lawton and Allied Families in June 1989. By now you should have received additional information on this tour.

Election of officers was held with Dr. Robert J. Lawton accepting the Presidency for one more year. Joseph J. Miller, III was elected Vice President (President elect) and Robert N. Rouse, Jr. was elected Secretary. Russell Lawton was re-elected Treasurer for the cemetery fund and Dr. Gerald M. Church will continue as Program Chairman.

Dr. Robert E. H. Peeples gave the closing prayer and Dr. Robert James Lawton adjourned the meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

Robert N. Rouse, Jr.
Secretary

P.S. Please excuse my tardiness in sending out the Minutes, but Morrelle and I have had many complications in our lives since the meeting in June.

Dear Lawton and Allied Families Association Members,

The 1994 Lawton and Allied Families Association Reunion is scheduled for June 17-18, at the Quality Inn Heart of Charleston, 125 Calhoun Street at Meeting Street, Charleston, South Carolina.

We will kick off the 1994 reunion with an informal social gathering at 5:30 p.m., Friday, June 17 at the Quality Inn. This will give us all a chance to get reacquainted and catch up on the year's news!

Our meeting will begin at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, June 18. A stimulating program will be presented featuring Maner Lawton Thorpe, Ph.D. Dr. Thorpe, an anthropologist and linguist specializing in Central and Northeast Asia, will discuss our Maner family connection. He plans to reveal a few details not generally known about the Maner family.

Dr. Robert James Lawton, Foundation Director, will present an update on the newly established family Foundation and how we can each participate in preserving our unique family history.

Blaine Mikesell will review the arrangements for a ten-day excursion to explore our Lawton heritage in England. Twenty people are needed to make the summer of 1995 trip a success. If you are interested in the trip please contact Blaine at (219) 267-5382.

This year we have added a family history roundtable to the program at 2:00. The roundtable is a chance to ask questions about each family branch, tell and listen to family stories, and talk with our speakers about their presentations. Two of our family historians, Thomas O. Lawton and Dr. Robert E.H. Peeples, will be on hand to lend their expertise.

The Lawton and Allied Families Association dues remain only $5.00. The dues enable us to send members registration information for the reunion and the reunion minutes and historian's report. Please send us the name and address of family members who would like to be members of the Association but are not currently receiving information.

I am looking forward to seeing all of you in Charleston, June 17-18, 1994 for the exciting Lawton and Allied Families Association Reunion.

With warmest regards,

Stacey Church Driscoll
President, Lawton and Allied Families Association

LAWTON AND ALLIED FAMILIES ASSOCIATION ANNUAL REUNION
JUNE 18-19, 1993
CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA

MINUTES

Dr. Robert James Lawton, President, opened the meeting with a welcome to all family members. Dr. Peeples jokingly admonished us, saying, "there are only two ways Christians pray, on their knees, or on their feet" before giving the invocation.

Our Family Tree, the outline of each family's lineage was begun by Dr. Peeples. He also encouraged family members to send announcements of births, deaths, marriages and other notable events to the family Historian, Cora Peeples.

After her lineage was detailed, the President thanked Deanna Wagoner for the lovely table favors from the Clowns' Bazaar, a special market for handicrafts. Deanna thanked the members of the family for their interest in and support of the shop.

Lawton O'Cain introduced herself and raised the issue of the Orangeburg County Road closing in Hampton County, South Carolina. Dr. Peeples remarked that the road is of historical significance because German settlers used it to travel between Salisbury and Orangeburg. O'Cain reminded us that General Sherman marched several thousand troops along the road. That was a good enough reason to close it, someone remarked! O'Cain asked if members of the family would be willing to sign a petition to keep the road open for historical reasons. After some discussion it was agreed the people living in the area near the road would sign the petition.

The President asked officers to give their annual reports.

Marion R. Lawton, Jr. (Russell), Treasurer, reported the family had approximately $3,470.00 in the bank. The fund is earning 2.9% interest in a money market account and Russell is open to suggestions about how the interest rate might be improved. Our Family Circle is still available for $25.00 a copy and Lawton crest notecards for $3.00 a box, a portion of which goes to the family fund.

Lawton O'Cain reported on the status of the Robert Cemetery fence in Robertville at the site of the original Black Swamp Baptist Church. She has contacted a millwright who can restore the fence using the pieces available for cost plus 10%. A motion was made that Lawton go forward with the work. The motion carried.

The Historian's report was given by Cora M. Peeples. She thanked family members for contributing information to the historical reports and bulletin board information. She provided handouts of the 1992 and 1993 reports.

Jack Boineau, past President of the Edisto Historical Preservation Society, discussed Edisto Island Cemetery restoration. He explained that the Lawton/Seabrook Cemetery is cleaned every two months. The cost is $25.00 for each cleaning. The current resident of the Seabrook mansion contributed $500.00 to the Society to start the cleanup project. Thomas O. Lawton, Jr. suggested the family make a contribution to the Edisto Historical Preservation Society. He remarked that the family has designated $400-$500 for markers for William Lawton and there was some discussion of a transfer of funds. Dr. Peeples moved to give $500.00 to preserve the Lawton/Seabrook Cemetery. The motion carried.

Dr. Peeples introduced Ernestine Fellers, President, The Society of First Families of South Carolina. He announced that all members of the family are invited to join the Society. Membership forms are available from Dr. Peeples.

Cora M. Peeples informed the group that the scrapbook collection has been sent to the Caroliniana collection in the library of the University of South Carolina in Columbia, South Carolina. The papers are noted in the family Bibliography, Second Edition, dated June, 1993. It was discussed that the first collection of Lawton papers in the Caroliniana collection needs to be catalogued. Tom Lawton noted that by comparison a set of Lawton papers in the Southern Historical Collection of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, is nicely guided (see Bibliography, pg. 9).

Dr. Gerald M. Church presented the Bibliography Committee update. He suggested the first Bibliography from 1986, printed on yellow paper, be replaced in our files by the 1993, mulberry colored version.

There were comments and reviews of a few of the publications and papers listed in the Bibliography. Dr. Church suggested we consider publishing several items in the Bibliography when and if funds are available for a publication program. He read an excerpt from "Old Toney and His Master" as an example of the type of out-of-print document that has historical significance to the family. He believes the book depicts the lives of our families in the Lawtonville area around the 1850's.

The Bibliography Committee is pleased to announce that Kimberly McLaren Hutchison will serve as its newest member.

Tom Lawton reviewed the family Foundation. The Foundation was established in 1989 to receive gifts for document publishing and preservation of the cemeteries. All gifts are tax deductible. Contributions are needed for markers at Edisto, clearing and restoration of cemeteries, and publishing family documents. Trustees of the Foundation are:

- 1) Mr. M. Russell Lawton, Jr.
- 2) Mrs. Don C. Sharp, Jr.
- 3) Mrs. Marion R. Lawton
- 4) Mr. & Mrs. Winston A. Lawton
- 5) Dr. Gerald M. Church
- 6) Rev. Robert E. H. Peebles
- 7) Mr. Lawton Maner

Dr. Robert James Lawton was elected as a Foundation Director.

Dr. Lawton remarked on his eight years as President of the family organization. He reviewed three goals he had at the beginning of his term:

- to develop a Bibliography of family papers
- to make available a trip to England to visit the home of our ancestors
- to establish a non-profit Foundation for gifts and donations.

All of those goals have been realized with the help of many family members. The President was given a round of applause to thank him for his outstanding service to the family.

Thanks were also warmly given to Dr. Milton and Frances Rhodes for the lovely dinner-on-the-river at Doc's Pad.

Our evening at the Summit Plantation in 1991 was remembered fondly and thanks were again extended to Jack Boineau.

The meeting adjourned for lunch.

After lunch the meeting resumed with a report from the Nominating Committee. No one had been found to assume the role of Secretary or President.

New business was asked for and the youngest attendee, Margaret Bower, age 7, and the oldest, Thelma Clark, age 90, were applauded.

With no further business the meeting was adjourned.

After the meeting adjourned, Linda Lawton Phillips accepted the role of Secretary and Stacey Church Driscoll accepted the role of President for the 1994 year. To acquaint you with Stacey and Linda, a pedigree chart for each is attached.

These minutes were prepared by Stacey Driscoll and Linda Phillips.

FRAG SESSION NUMBER TWO.

by Mrs. Cora McKenzie Peeples,
Historian and Scrapbook Custodian.

Frag Session Number One about news filed in our Scrapbooks was presented when our Reunion met in Savannah in 1979. Since then we have several authors to add to our list: Carolyn Lawton Harrell published Kith And Kin in 1984. She gave us a preview when we met in Wilmington, NC. Stacy and Gerald Church wrote The Lawtons of Summer Oaks and gave us a program in 1984 on the family of Alexander Benjamin and Narcissa Melissa Lawton. This family is also represented by Dr. Robert James Lawton and his sister and her husband Blaine Mikesell who arranged the tour of England which 35 of us enjoyed in 1989.

We had a speaker in 1986 who told of his life on the James Island plantation of Allison St. John and Wallace Lawton, Dr. Clyde Bresee who wrote Life On A Lawton Plantation Near Charleston. And we have a song composed by Mrs. Thomas Lawton Willingham, harmonized by Laura Lawton Reynolds, The Farmer Man.

In 1983 when Connie Lawton Huntley was President, Michael West Berry spoke on the Life & Death of Sarah Isabella Robert and her nephew, Richard Franklin Bostick, in the 1837 wreck of the steamship Home. Michael was a great speaker who has since gone to his final resting place. Our family lost an outstanding young man, so knowledgeable and capable. Michael was Custodian of the Museum of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington for several years and moved up to the National Trust before his untimely death.

Two of our past Presidents have died since 1979: the brothers Benjamin Joseph and Robert Josiah Willingham.

Cousins who have joined us since 1979 include Crystelle Robert Wickett of Fort Worth, Texas who has had a distinguished career as President of the State of Texas Huguenot Society, the Texas State Garden Club, Texas State Mother of the Year, Sponsor for the Children of the American Revolution and in many other positions. Crystelle also plays tennis avidly and often.

Deanna Wagoner, whose Clown Bazaar at 9 Broad St. was founded in Nepal before its reactionary government forced her to leave while she was working for Church World Service, now operates it as a not-for-profit corporation. She offers items handcrafted by physically handicapped and economically disadvantaged Christians from all over the world. Visit Deanna's Clown Bazaar for unusual gifts and collectibles.

Carow Rice's grandson, Clay Rice, follows in his footsteps in cutting silhouettes, playing guitar, composing and singing songs.

Our family has enjoyed special recognition in having Thomas O. Lawton, Jr. as President of the Huguenot Society of South Carolina and of the South Carolina Historical Society for the past several years, while the Rev. Dr. Robert E. H. Peeples has been President of the Society of First Families of South Carolina, 1670-1700. Through their leadership we were able to erect and dedicate with appropriate ceremonies, a bronze plaque in memory of the Rev. Pierre Robert (1656-1715), Founder and First Rector (1706-1710) of the Parish of St. James Santee. In addition, the family contributed in 1989 more than $800 to the fund for the maintenance of the historic Church on Old Georgetown Road. Our next project is to erect epitaphs for Rev. Pierre and Jeane (Bayer) Robert and their son, Pierre Robert, Jr., at the site of Old Jamestown on Santee River.

Our Secretary, W. Maxwell Lawton, the family's outstanding young artist, is a grandson of the Rev. Samuel and Alice Lawton. The Rev. Sam was founder of the South Carolina State Society for the Blind. Max's brother, Deaver Lawton, represented the family in Desert Storm earlier this year. We are proud of both of them.

There is an article in the Scrapbook about James Lawton of Bluffton, a potter who has won many awards for his work. The family's artistic genes can be traced back to the dynasty of ROBERT artists in France and Switzerland centuries ago.

Lawton O'Cain's Bed and Breakfast, the John Lawton House in Estill, is flourishing, quite popular with the hunting crowd.

Summit Plantation, off Toogoodoo Road, was bought and restored as their home by John and Patricia (Youmans) Boineau. It is shown in Plantations of The Lowcountry by William Baldwin.

Jane and Gerald Church's granddaughter wrote a poem honoring the family the last year we met in Hardeeville. It is preserved in the Scrapbook.

Mrs. Alice Rhodes Rogers (Rt. 3, Box 121, Mullins, SC 29574) has published a RHODES family history which includes the family of the Hon. George Rhodes (1802-1881) of the Hermitage Plantation, Lawtonville, Signer of the 1860 Ordinance of Secession, and his two wives, both daughters of James Jehu and Charlotte Ann (Lawton) Robert of Cotton Hill Plantation, Robertville. Copies may be ordered from Alice.

In looking through the information in our Scrapbook, we can feel blessed in being part of a family which has been honorable and influential in this State since 1693 when Landgrave Thomas Smith was Governor, 1686 when Rev. Pierre Robert was minister to the Huguenots on Santee River, 1691 when John Ladson was a member of the Grand Council, 1698 when Edmund Bohun was 1st Chief Justice. Certainly few have contributed more to society than Gen. Henry Martyn Robert in his Robert's Rules of Order. He was truly a peacemaker. When I look at all the members who have accomplished so much, I can see that they have a personal relationship with our Lord who guides and directs us in the many good works we do.

We have stories of births, marriages and deaths, plus many honors won. We gather them all together in thanksgiving to our heavenly Father in the words of that great old hymn:

"O God, our help in ages past, our hope for years to come,
Be Thou our Guide while life shall last, and our eternal home."

Dear Cousins,

The month of June approaches
And from all across the land,
The Lawton folks are planning
For the gathering of the clan.

That's right - - - the date this year for our reunion is Saturday, June 8th, at Edisto Island. This is one reunion you will not want to miss. Here's why: On Friday evening, June 7th, from 8:00 o'clock on, we have all been invited to the lovely home of Cousin Billy Mc Leod and his sister, Mrs. Rose Barnwell. They live on James Island at 325 Country Club Drive. How to get there? Where Highways 700 and 171 divide in Charleston, take 171 toward Folly Beach. After crossing Wappoo Bridge, turn left at the light, go 150 yards, and turn right. Theirs is a large house with tall columns on the front.

After the informal reception, out-of-town relatives will want to stay in a motel of their choice in Charleston. You may make your own reservations and arrangements with one of these suggested motels: Holiday Inn (Highway 171 South, Box 3366), Charleston Inn (35 Lockwood Drive), Holiday Inn (Downtown, Meeting at Calhoun St.), Sheraton-Ft. Sumter Hotel (No. 1 King St.), all with addresses of Charleston, S. C.

The reunion will be held on Saturday morning at 10:00 A. M. with registration beginning at 9:30. We have secured a school house on Edisto Island where we will have both our meeting and the luncheon at $1.25 per plate. As you travel South on Highway 174, the Edisto Island Presbyterian Church is on the left, with the school about a mile beyond the church on the right. Both are on the main road to Edisto Beach, about 37 miles from Charleston.

This year we have planned to have no speaker, since we feel that there are a number of our own group who have interesting and varied facts and stories. Come prepared to be "on the program" if you wish. Of course, we may have to limit ourselves in the interest of time. Bring any historical information you may wish to display.

The highlight of this year's reunion will be the formal unveiling and dedication of the cenotaph to Captain William Lawton which has been erected in the yard of the Presbyterian Church. This will take place just after the lunch, with a brief but meaningful service. Those who wish to have a share financially in the erection of this cenotaph may mail your contributions to us or bring them to the reunion, if you prefer. This unveiling is a once-in-a-lifetime event which you will certainly not want to miss!

Now here is some general information you will want to have concerning our reunion:

We will have available for sale copies of the South Carolina Historical Magazine with Tom Lawton's article on Captain William Lawton.

French-fold note paper with the Lawton coat-of-arms will be on sale for $1.00 per box, as last year. If you are unable to attend the reunion, we will mail this to you for $1.25 per box.

We are open for invitations for a meeting place in 1969.

We shall have the usual recognitions, family data, and such other matters as we are all interested in.

VERY IMPORTANT:

Please return the enclosed card to us by May 15th if you plan to attend the Friday reception or the Saturday luncheon. We need to know how many to plan for. If we do not hear from you by the 15th, we will assume you have other plans. Also use this card to notify us of any needed corrections or additions to the mailing list.

Thank you for reading this "wordy" letter, but this is one of the fallacies in electing a preacher as your president!!

We're looking forward to seeing you this year at the reunion.

Sincerely,

Kirk and Sarah

J. Kirk Lawton, Jr., President
Sarah S. Lawton, Sec't-Treas.

To All Lawton Family Tour Members:

We are absolutely ecstatic by the excellent response by the Lawton family to the English tour next June. As we write this letter, 33 people have signed up for the tour. We list the people and their places of residence on a separate sheet so you'll know who is going (and, so far, who isn't going). This is an excellent size for a family group. You'll have a 45-passenger coach, including a lavatory aboard, you'll have your own registered English guide and, of course, your driver of the coach. We had hoped for a minimum of 20 people to make the tour feasible, but when the applications came rolling in, we began to wonder whether you would exceed the capacity of the coach!

Our experience suggests that there are still a few people who will join the tour group. This almost always happens with a few people who cannot make a full commitment at this time, but who later find they would like to go. And we'll endeavor to accommodate these people while space remains. So if you know of a Lawton cousin or sister or whomever, tell them that the tour is definitely going and there's still room on a first-come, first-served basis for a few more.

I shall be making final arrangements for the tour when I'm in England after Christmas and will give you an updating when I return in late January.

Meanwhile, our sincere appreciation to all of you who have sent us your applications so that we can finalize the tour plans. May your holidays be merry with visions of Olde England in your dreams for 1989.

Sincerely,

James E. Bolles, Director

At the annual meeting of the Lawton and allied families reunion held in Charleston, S. C. on Saturday, June 16, 1990, the president in chair, Dr. Robert James Lawton called the business meeting to order. Dr. Robert Peeples gave the invocation. The president then called for the committee reports.

The treasurer's report was given by the treasurer in chair, Russel Lawton. Included in this report are the following items:

- . Interest income of $91.76
- . Expenditures;
 - C. C. McGreger for $175.00
 - Tom Lawton for $147.00
- . Balance of $2,191.47
- . Requests for gifts to the Cemetery Maintenance Fund to be mailed to Russel Lawton.

The Historian's report was given by the historian in chair, Miss Cora, to the president.

The Cemetery Maintenance Report was given by committee chairman, Jack Boineau. A discussion followed concerning the condition of the Seabrook-Lawton Cemetery of Edisto Island. It was concluded that funds should be raised to repair the wall and stones placed to honor the graves of Captain William Lawton and his wives. These funds are to be sent to the treasurer, Russel Lawton, P. O. Box 16, Folly Beach, S. C. 29439.

Dr. Peeples summarized the condition of St. James Church Santee following Hugo. The church was undamaged however the records of the church were lost due to the storm. The church leaders graciously accepted the remainder of the funds for the bronze plaque honoring Pastor Pierrer Robert for general maintenance of the building but not as a Pastor Pierrer Robert perpetual memorial fund.

Dr. Peeples and Miss Cora presented a royalty check for $200.00 from proceeds from the sale of Our Family Circle with the promise of future royalty checks.

The Bibliography Committee Report was given by the chairman, Jerry Church. No changes at this time.

This concludes the committee reports as presented.

Our family tree was individually acknowledged by all present.

Jack Boineau, of The Program Committee, introduced Dr. Peeples as this year's speaker. Dr. Peeples reported on the recent family trip to England and the visit to Lawton Hall and to Church Lawton. Several of the 35 who went gave a group presentation and related personal experiences.

Dianna Wagoner suggested the secretary write a letter to be copied and signed by the family association members requesting the state of South Carolina to issue a commemoration stamp honoring General Henry M. Robert for his contribution to the state.

On the motion of Dr. R. James Lawton the meeting adjourned and the blessing of the noon meal was given by Maxwell Lawton at this time.

Respectfully submitted by Wesley Maxwell Lawton,
Secretary.

Hilton Head Island, S. C.
May 1964

Dear Cousins,

Because we are proud of and thankful to God for our distinguished family connection, we are happy to extend this invitation to you and your family to share in a gala REUNION of the LAWTON & ALLIED FAMILIES on SATURDAY, 13 June 1964, at the National Guard Armory, Allendale, S. C. Registration @ $1.30 begins 10AM, Call-to-order 10:30 AM. Supervised play for pre-school & elementary school children by Edwina Maner & her Committee includes swimming (life guard on duty) 10AM-Noon so bring their suits & towels. An "old-fashioned fried chicken dinner" with all the trimmings is being prepared for you by the Barton Community Club with Cousin Xania chairing the Food Committee.

In your honor Mrs. Leslie E. Hanna, Jr. (Betty Vincent) will give a Reception in her lovely home on Baker Ave. in Estill 8-10 PM FRIDAY, 12 June. On your behalf we have accepted Betty's gracious invitation. Out-of-towners will want to make advance o/night reservations at one of Allendale's many fine motels: Town & Country, Holiday Inn, Crescent, Allendale, Siesta, Howard Johnson, etc.

Great News! One of South Carolina's VIPs, SAMUEL GAILLARD STONEY ("Fascinating Sam" himself - almost a cousin!), author, lecturer, historian, tour director, etc., has graciously consented to charm us with his anecdotes of "our own Jamestown" (French Santee) and our Robert-Jaudon-DuBourdeaux Huguenot forebears. Thus inspired, you will want several of the Lawton-Robert-Jaudon "coats-of-arms" which will be available from your Secretary.

Your Historiographer, Mrs. Maner Lawton (Alice) Tonge, 166 Clifton Ave., Spartanburg, will brief us on all family births, marriages, deaths & honors. (Your branch of the family will be included if YOU mail all such items to her.) As Custodian of "OUR FAMILY CIRCLE" she reports only 80 copies left. Every family head should have one - a remarkable buy @ $10 (half of which sweetens our Cemetery Fnd) a most-wanted wedding, baptismal, birthday or Christmas gift.

Those who heard the outstanding speech by Dr. E. L. Inabinett, Director of the South Caroliniana Library where the "LAWTON PAPERS" are deposited, on "The Lawton Family of Robertville" last year are delighted that it is in print @ $1. We are grateful to Cousin Alice Tonge for accepting custodianship of our 500-copy "private edition". If each family gets several copies, they won't last long; get yours on the 13th - or send Alice $1.25 to mail you one.

We expect our famous cousin, Carew Rice, world's greatest silhouette artist, to honor our Reunion with his presence. IF you are lucky you may get him to immortalize you & your family with his magic scissors. His address: Wiggins Road, Green Pond, S. C.

Please bring your historic documents, pictures, silver, honors, etc. to display. Your family rejoices with you in sharing them. How we thrilled last year to hear Dr. Martha Erwin Sibley's charming account of how she recovered her gr-grandfather's rare book from heirs of d...yankee arsonists & looters of 1865. We hope to hear from this gracious lady again this year.

Truly, our "cup runneth over"! You are invited by their hospitable owners to visit our three extant ante bellum family plantations: "Rose Lawn", "Gravel Hill" & "Erwinton" on Saturday afternoon. Then Tom Lawton, Jr. will direct our Cemetery Tour of Antioch, Smyrna, Concord, Lawtonville, Robert, Bostick, Blackswamp & Robertville Cemeteries where we all share responsibility for the care of graves of our beloved forebears. More about this later.

If you honor and love your family, do write us whether you'll accept these varied invitations for June 12-13. Thanks to the many gifts for our "operating treasury" in 1963, we managed to weather the annual financial storm; 1964 contributions will be thankfully acknowledged by your Treasurer - and welcomed! Also, do enclose any new names for our mailing list; we don't want to overlook (Heaven help us) anyone "of the blood". God's Blessings.

Faithfully yours,

(Rev.) Robert E. H. Peeples, President

(Mrs.) Cora McKenzie Peeples, Sec.-Treas.

FRAG SESSION NUMBER TWO.

by Mrs. Cora McKenzie Peeples,
Historian and Scrapbook Custodian.

Frags Session Number One about news filed in our Scrapbooks was presented when our Reunion met in Savannah in 1979. Since then we have several authors to add to our list: Carolyn Lawton Harrell published Kith And Kin in 1984. She gave us a preview when we met in Wilmington, NC. Stacy and Gerald Church wrote The Lawtons of Summer Oaks and gave us a program in 1984 on the Family of Alexander Benjamin and Narcissa Melissa Lawton. This family is also represented by Dr. Robert James Lawton and his sister and her husband Blaine Mikesell who arranged the tour of England which 35 of us enjoyed in 1989.

We had a speaker in 1986 who told of his life on the James Island plantation of Allison St. John and Wallace Lawton, Dr. Clyde Bresee who wrote Life On A Lawton Plantation Near Charleston. And we have a song composed by Mrs. Thomas Lawton Willingham, harmonized by Laura Lawton Reynolds, The Farmer Man.

In 1983 when Connie Lawton Huntley was President, Michael West Berry spoke on the Life & Death of Sarah Isabella Robert and her nephew, Richard Franklin Bostick, in the 1837 wreck of the steamship Home. Michael was a great speaker who has since gone to his final resting place. Our family lost an outstanding young man, so knowledgeable and capable. Michael was Custodian of the Museum of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Washington for several years and moved up to the National Trust before his untimely death.

Two of our past Presidents have died since 1979: the brothers Benjamin Joseph and Robert Josiah Willingham.

Cousins who have joined us since 1979 include Crystelle Robert Wickett of Fort Worth, Texas who has had a distinguished career as President of the State of Texas Huguenot Society, the Texas State Garden Club, Texas State Mother of the Year, Sponsor for the Children of the American Revolution and in many other positions. Crystelle also plays tennis avidly and often.

Deanna Wagoner, whose Clown Bazaar at 9 Broad St. was founded in Nepal before its reactionary government forced her to leave while she was working for Church World Service, now operates it as a not-for-profit corporation. She offers items handcrafted by physically handicapped and economically disadvantaged Christians from all over the world. Visit Deanna's Clown Bazaar for unusual gifts and collectibles.

Carow Rice's grandson, Clay Rice, follows in his footsteps in cutting silhouettes, playing guitar, composing and singing songs.

Our family has enjoyed special recognition in having Thomas O. Lawton, Jr. as President of the Huguenot Society of South Carolina and of the South Carolina Historical Society for the past several years, while the Rev. Dr. Robert E. H. Peeples has been President of the Society of First Families of South Carolina, 1670-1700. Through their leadership we were able to erect and dedicate with appropriate ceremonies, a bronze plaque in memory of the Rev. Pierre Robert (1656-1715), Founder and First Rector (1706-1710) of the Parish of St. James Santee. In addition, the family contributed in 1989 more than $800 to the fund for the maintenance of the historic Church on Old Georgetown Road. Our next project is to erect epitaphs for Rev. Pierre and Jeane (Bayer) Robert and their son, Pierre Robert, Jr., at the site of Old Jamestown on Santee River.
